Point 8: The Sakuntala Park

Osijek is famous for its parks and many green areas. The Sakuntala Park is one of them and it is interesting because of the Sakuntala statue and the sphinges at the entrance to the park

And for the bravest ones: find the statue "Crveni fičo" (The Red Fiat) which is situated in the Knez Trpimir street. "Fičo crushes a tank!" or "The Red Fičo" is a famous monument in Osijek. It symbolizes the Croatian victory over the Yugoslav Army. (There is a video about this event that you can see.)

Let's go!

Point 1: A statue of the Croatian writer August Cesarec – "The Walker"

A true story: during the war there was an alert and one lady ran to the shelter. She saw the statue and she thought it was a man. She ran to it and tried to "take" it to the shelter.

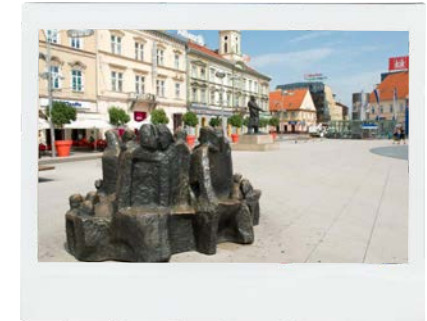

Look at "The Walker's" foot. The legend says that you will come back to Osijek if you touch its foot.

Point 2: Monument to Croatian War Veterans – The Door of the Europe

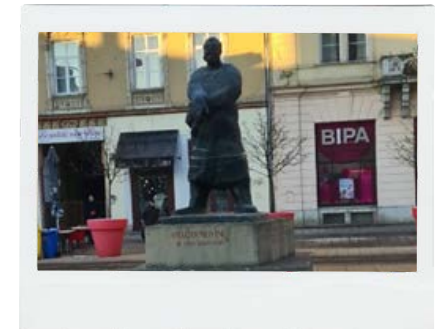

The statue was constructed by means of iron blocks which show how the town opens itself to Europe. The iron blocks were supposed to rust which symbolizes the suffering of the people during the war.
